

LAW DAY 2014 / PROCLAMATION SIGNING RECOGNITION AND AWARDS CEREMONY

On Friday, April 25th, during a ceremony held in the CNMI Supreme Court, a proclamation establishing May 1, 2014, as Law Day and “American Democracy and the Rule of Law: Why Every Vote Matters” as its theme, was jointly signed by representatives of the three branches of government. Chief Justice Alexandro C. Castro represented the Judiciary, Governor Eloy S. Inos represented the Executive branch, and House Speaker Joseph P. Deleon Guerrero represented the legislature. They were joined in the proclamation’s signing by CNMI Bar Association President Maya B. Kara.

As has become the tradition on Law Day, the winners of the Law Day Poster and Essay contest were recognized and received their awards. Associate Justice Perry B. Grant C. Eichenberger, 13, pictured above, from Grace Christian Academy, read his winning essay “American Democracy and the Rule of Law: Why Every Vote Matters.” Eichenberger cited voting’s importance to a democracy, and concluded that while voting for the United States president does not apply in the commonwealth, it is very important in other matters such as voting for governor. “Voting is very important for the common people, for then they get a voice in their government,” he said.
